

Alliance for International
Education

World Conference
Geneva, Switzerland
18 – 20 October 2019

Rethinking International Education

Values and Relevance

Ecole Internationale de Genève
International School of Geneva

La Grande Boissière

Register for the conference at: www.intedalliance.org/

Alliance for International Education

World Conference: Geneva, Switzerland

18 - 20 October 2019

Rethinking International Education Values and Relevance

AIE conferences aim to bring together those involved in the promotion of intercultural understanding and international education, including researchers and practitioners from around the world at every level of education. The 2019 conference programme will include a series of related strand sessions based on small group presentations and discussion around a range of topic areas, in addition to keynote presentations by distinguished speakers. There will also be a host of other informal opportunities for the exchange of views and experience around the overall conference theme of Rethinking International Education – Values and Relevance. All participants will be members of one of the strand groups, and those who wish to make a presentation within one of the strands should submit a proposal via the AIE website, as outlined below.

Call for Proposals

To submit a proposal, please upload to the conference website an abstract of the proposed presentation (not exceeding 300 words), together with the name(s) and full contact details of conference presenter(s). Each presentation will last for a maximum of 20 minutes, followed by 25 minutes discussion. Proposals for presentations should relate to the overall conference theme (Rethinking International Education – Values and Relevance) and, more specifically, to one of the topic areas included below. The conference strand structure will be developed on the basis of accepted proposals. Proposals for presentations may be based on completed research or other projects, on classroom and whole school/institution experience, or on ideas for innovative schemes or topics for future exploration. Proposals will be welcomed from those with interests and experience across the age range from early years to university level and from those with responsibility for leading change in systems of schools/colleges, as well as from those with experience of leading individual institutions. In relating to one of the following topic areas, presentations will be expected to draw on issues concerning values and relevance of the area in our rapidly changing world.

Deadline for proposals : 31 July 2019.

Proposals for strand presentations are invited relating to the following topics areas:

Rethinking the Curriculum in International Education

Rethinking Assessment in International Education

Rethinking the role of Language in International Education

Rethinking Learning, Teaching and Pedagogy in International Education

Rethinking Leadership and Management in schools and other institutions promoting International Education

Rethinking International Education in the local context

Rethinking International Education in the global context

Rethinking the role of Technology in International Education

Rethinking support for the development of teachers in promoting International Education

The role of Culture in rethinking International Education

The Purposes of International Education for the future

Engaging with Difference in future International Education

International Education for all; the challenges for achievement in the future

Register to participate in the conference or submit a proposal via www.intedalliance.org